- Large organizations lose a document every 12 seconds (Cuadra Associates)
- 90% of all information is still retained on paper (Source: Gartner)
- U.S. managers spend an average of 4 weeks a year searching for or waiting on misfiled, mislabeled, untracked, or ‘lost’ papers (Cuadra Associates)
- Computer users spend 7.5 percent of their time on a PC looking for misplaced files (Survey reported in Information Week)

Put Your Records On

- Ensure records are available
  - Public records requests
  - Use by entity
  - Discovery
  - Historical perspective
- Protect records from improper destruction
- Ensure we aren’t keeping more than we should
Benefits of Record Management

- Space Savings
- Time savings
- Money savings
- Increase public trust
- Create and document institutional memory

What is a public record?

- A PUBLIC RECORD is a record kept by a public office
  - “Kept by” means that the record is actually in existence and in the possession of the public office or person responsible for public records
  - Examples of records not “kept by” a public office:
    1. a record not yet in existence
    2. a record that has been disposed of lawfully

R.C. § 149.43(A)

The Definition of a Record – The Three Prong Test

- A RECORD is:
  1. information stored on fixed media (paper, tapes, electronic text, photos, films, videos, etc.); and
  2. created, received or sent under the jurisdiction of the public office (the public office used the record in some way); and
  3. documents the organizations, functions, policies, decisions, procedures, operations, or other activities of the public office

R.C. § 149.011(G)

Examples of records: ordinances and resolutions, purchase orders, plans reviewed by the Building Department, drafts of letters, telephone messages, e-mail communications regarding City business, memoranda, audio recordings, police reports, violation notices, contracts, and correspondence with residents
E-mail Messages

- E-mails can be public records. Classified based on content:
  1. Non-Record E-mails: such as personal correspondence or material that is publically available to anyone
     - No requirement to retain
  2. Transitory E-mails: such as telephone messages, drafts, and other limited documents that serve to convey information of temporary importance in lieu of oral communication
     - Retain until no administrative value
  3. Intermediate E-mails: are more significant than transitory, such as internal memos, advisory reports, and meeting minutes
     - Depends on subject matter of the correspondence
  4. Permanent E-mails: have significant administrative, legal, and/or fiscal value, such as executive correspondence or departmental policies and procedures
     - Depends on the subject matter

Social Media

- Social media records should be given the same consideration as other records
- If the content of the social media record meets the definition of a record, then it must be retained for the appropriate retention period
- Public employees engaging in social media activities should be careful of the content of their communications and corresponding records retention requirements

Records

- Databases: If an existing program can perform a search and produce a compilation or summary as described by the requester, that output is deemed to “exist” as a record for the purposes of the Public Records Act
- Electronic Records: ensure authenticity, security, and reliability
- Non-public records: All records – public or not – are subject to records management and retention laws
Transitory Records

- Transitory Records are those that are temporary in nature and created for the purpose of transferring their content to an official file, database, report, etc.
- Personal Notes and drafts are transitory records if they meet the three-part definition of a “record”
  - Notes are not records if they are:
    1. kept as personal papers;
    2. kept for the employee/official’s own convenience; and
    3. not accessible to other members
  - The content of the draft determines how long it should be kept

What are transient records?

1. contain information of short term usefulness:
2. hold very little administrative value to the office or person;
3. serve to convey information of a temporary value; and
4. do not set policy, establish guidelines, certify a transaction, or become a receipt
- Transient records are retained until no longer of administrative value
- The retention period could be as short as a few hours and could be as long as several days or weeks
- Examples Include:
  1. voice mail messages;
  2. telephone message slips;
  3. post-it notes; and
  4. superseded drafts

Record Retention Obligations

- Make only such records as are necessary to document the organization, functions, and essential transactions of the agency, and to protect the legal and financial rights of the entity and persons directly affected
- Do not destroy, mutilate, or otherwise dispose of records except as provided by law or under the rules of a Records Commission
- Organize and maintain public records in a manner that they can be made available for inspection or copying
- Keep an available copy of current records retention schedule at a location readily available to the public
Where to Begin with Records Retention

- Perform a records inventory
  - What records are there?
  - Where are they stored?
  - How are they stored?
  - How are they used?
- Create Record Series
  - “a group of similar records that are arranged according to a filing system that are related as a result of being created, received, or used in the same activity”
  - Committee minutes, purchase orders

Factors Determining Value (and ultimately retention)

- Administrative Purposes – Period needed by the office to carry out its duties
- Fiscal Tracking – Needs pertaining to the receipt, transfer, payment, adjustment, or encumbrances of funds
- Documents subject to audit
- Legal Value – Documents relating to rights or obligations of citizens or of the agency that created it
- Historical Value –
  - Documents policies, decisions, procedures, etc.
  - Contains significant info about people, places, events
  - Ohio Historical Society/Archives

Records Retention: Schedule Contents

- A retention schedule consists of the following:
  1. Record title and description;
  2. Length of time the record must be retained; and
  3. The media type of the records series (paper, microfiche, digital, film or videotape)

- Retention schedules are designed for people who have no knowledge of the records
- An efficient retention policy is one that refrains from using legal jargon and acronyms
Retention Periods

A record retention period can be:

- A set period of time with subsequent instructions
  - Routine e-mail correspondence must be kept for 6 months, then destroyed
  - Executive e-mail correspondence must be kept for 2 years, then transferred to State Archives
- An event-driven period
  - Mailing lists shall be kept until superseded or obsolete
- A set period of time and an event driven period
  - Contracts shall be retained for 15 years after expiration
- Set retention period to the longest value

Records Commission

- Responsibilities
  - Provide rules for retention and disposition of records
  - Reviews and approves
    - Retention Schedules
    - Applications for one-time disposals

RC-1 Process

- Follow RC-2 Process
- Receive signed, approved RC-1
- Dispose of records
- Retain RC-1 Forms permanently
RC-3 Process
- Can only be used if RC-2 is on file
- For RC-2 submitted prior to 9/29/11 – have to use RC-3 form
- Complete form and submit at least 15 days prior to scheduled disposition
  - Retain a copy (for the record)
  - Can be submitted electronically
- OHC will contact you if there are records it wants to archive prior to disposal
- If no RC-3 form is needed, work with local Records Commission prior to disposition

When to Dispose?
[Image of an office with papers]
Document the Disposition

- You need to know whether the record exists
- You need proof of compliance with record retention schedule
- Demonstrates consistent business practice for litigation purposes

A Word About Formats...

Format Choice

- Technology will change
- Media will degrade

- You still must make sure that the record is available, readable, and authentic until it has met retention
Electronic Document Management Systems

- Filing Conventions
  - Create unique names
  - Names should be simple and easy to understand
  - Avoid special characters
  - Use dates of creation – beginning with year
  - Keep file name short
  - Include version number
  - Set up naming protocols

- Develop a Policy
  - File names must last
  - Access and ease of use
  - Make administration easy
  - How many names will you need?
  - Determine what metadata to collect and preserve
  - Universal retrieval
  - Which is the official copy
  - What is relationship to paper copies

Records Retention: Liability for Violations

An “aggrieved person” may file either or both of the following, in common pleas court:

- A civil action for injunctive relief to compel compliance with this section, and/or
- A civil action to recover a forfeiture of $1,000 for each violation, but:
- Forfeiture for multiple violations capped at $10,000, and attorney fees are capped at forfeiture amount
